

Charlie & The Chocolate Factory Summary

You don't need a Golden Ticket to experience the sweet thrills of a lifetime like Charlie Bucket! Just visit The Children's Theater as Charlie and four other children venture to this marvelous candyland of delights! Be ready to taste the excitement as the lucky children find the Golden Tickets that are the keys to this adventure. You won't forget these boys and girls:

- Mike Teavee: who loves television and is considered "a useless lad."
- Veruca Salt: a spoiled little girl who MUST have her way.
- Violet Beuregarde: a bubble-gum chewing girl who does not follow directions.
- Augustus Gloop: a young German boy who loves to eat so much that he gets himself in trouble.
- Charlie Bucket: who is the delight of his grandparents' eyes.

And don't forget Charlie's grandparents who haven't been out of bed for YEARS and provide some dandy candy humor in their own way!

Willy Wonka has invited the Golden Ticket winners to be guests at his factory and receive a lifetime supply of chocolate. The Oompa Loompas help Mr. Wonka as he entertains his guests--even as they soar above the factory in a glass elevator. Little does Willy Wonka know that Mr. Slugworth, a scheming crook who wants to take over the candy business, is trying to persuade Charlie to share the Wonka secrets!

It is during this visit that Charlie proves to have a true and honest heart and is worthy of inheriting the factory. Believe it or not, sometimes sweet dreams really DO come true! See you at the Chocolate Factory!
